

Vibration mixer with controlled vibration drive consists of an electric motor, a drive shaft with an unbalanced weight, a housing mounted on elastic elements, a container with a blade shaft connected to the electric motor via a flexible coupling, and a separate drive for rotating the container. The unbalanced weight has a hub in which a hydraulic cylinder chamber is located, divided into right and left chambers by a piston mounted on a rod.