

Replaceable element of nail care device is made of a sheet material. It includes at least one working abrasive surface and is designed to be fitted onto the base of nail care device. Replaceable element is made in the form of an envelope with two opposite foldable edges and two open edges. The two foldable edges are designed to be fastened after folding, thereby securing the replaceable element to the base.