

Method of vegetative propagation of floribunda rose varieties by cuttings with the use of plant growth stimulants, involves selecting semi-lignified shoots and taking cuttings from them, which are treated with substances that stimulate rhizogenesis.