

Systems and methods of the various embodiments may provide porous materials for electrodes of electrochemical energy storage systems.